Inner Weather

XL-07 / Typographic portrait

Inner Weather

Some storms never reach the sky.

Words become contour lines. A face emerges through density and pressure, with no portrait photograph or drawn facial boundary.

Cartography + typographic portraiture + a single blue ink.

STUDIO 02 – AN IMAGINED COUTURE PRESENTATION

CONCEPT INVITATION / AK

PALIMPSEST / FICTIONAL EDITION 01

*We keep the words.
The silence keeps us.*

We left the window open long after the light had gone.
The room held its breath. A cup cooled beside your book.
There were things we could have said, small ordinary
things that would have changed the shape of the evening.
Instead, we listened to the street, to a door closing,
to the quiet machinery of a life continuing elsewhere.
I remember the words we used to fill the silence.
I remember more clearly the silence we left behind.

A STUDY IN MEMORY, LANGUAGE & ERASURE

JACKET CONCEPT / DESIGN: AKSHIT KHURANA

THE THINGS WE ALMOST SAID — PALIMPSEST

We left the window open long after the light had gone.
The room held its breath. A cup cooled beside your book.
There were things we could have said, small ordinary
things that would have changed the shape of the evening.

The Things We Almost Said.

We left the window open long after the light had gone.
~~The room held its breath. A cup cooled beside your book.~~ still here.

Instead, we listened to the street, to a door closing,
to the quiet machinery of a life continuing elsewhere.
I remember the words we used to fill the silence.
I remember more clearly the silence we left behind.
We left the window open long after the light had gone.

ORIGINAL PROSE / SELF-INITIATED BOOK STUDY

XL-09 / Book jacket

Palimpsest

A complete front, spine and back jacket. Original prose is interrupted by erasure; what survives carries a second, quieter message.

AN EXHIBITION ABOUT LISTENING

STUDY / 03

The shape of silence.

LESS SIGNAL.
MORE FEELING.

STILL / SPATIAL STUDIES

ENTER SLOWLY. BRING NOTHING.

XL-03 / Spatial poster / Exhibition direction

A cathedral for silence.

A cathedral for silence.

A speculative exhibition about listening. Repeated archways pull the eye toward a blade of light; one tiny human establishes the scale.

Architectural perspective + a restrained cinematic light field + literary typography.

AK-006 / FASHION POSTER / 4:5

CHROMA/2003 campaign

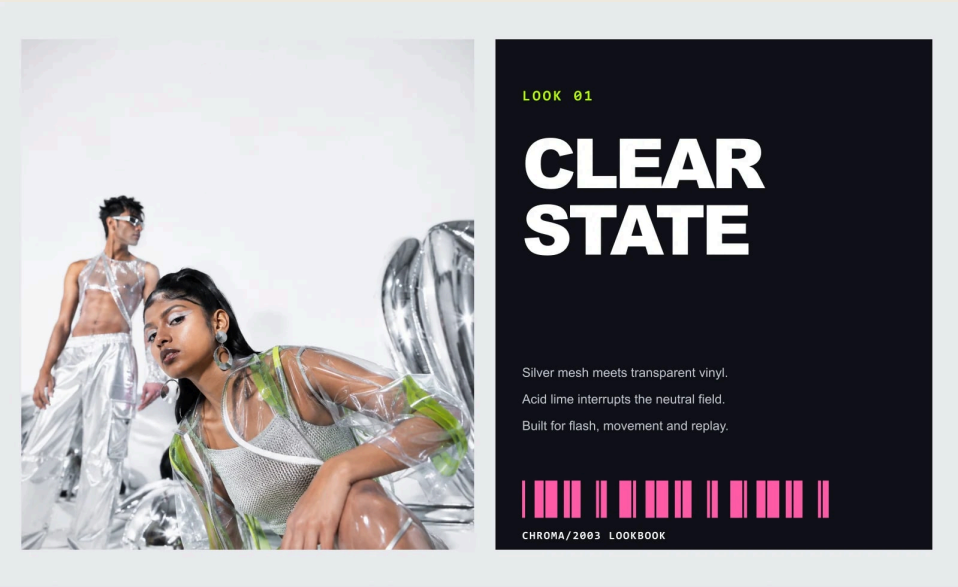

A fashion campaign balancing hard flash, chrome surfaces and a blunt verbal proposition.

AK-007 / IDENTITY POSTER / 4:5

Control the body copy

An abstract identity poster where interface language becomes fashion language.

AK-008 / EDITORIAL SPREAD / 18:11

Clear State lookbook

A lookbook spread that lets material description and barcode rhythm counter the expressive image.

AK-009 / SOCIAL / 1:1

Drop 01 announcement

A high-speed release tile using rotation, code-like dates and a central barcode anchor.

AK-010 / PACKAGING / 8:5

Hangtag and shipping sleeve

A packaging application that translates the digital palette into two tactile objects.

03

Self-initiated fictional festival / 2026

RAAT Nights

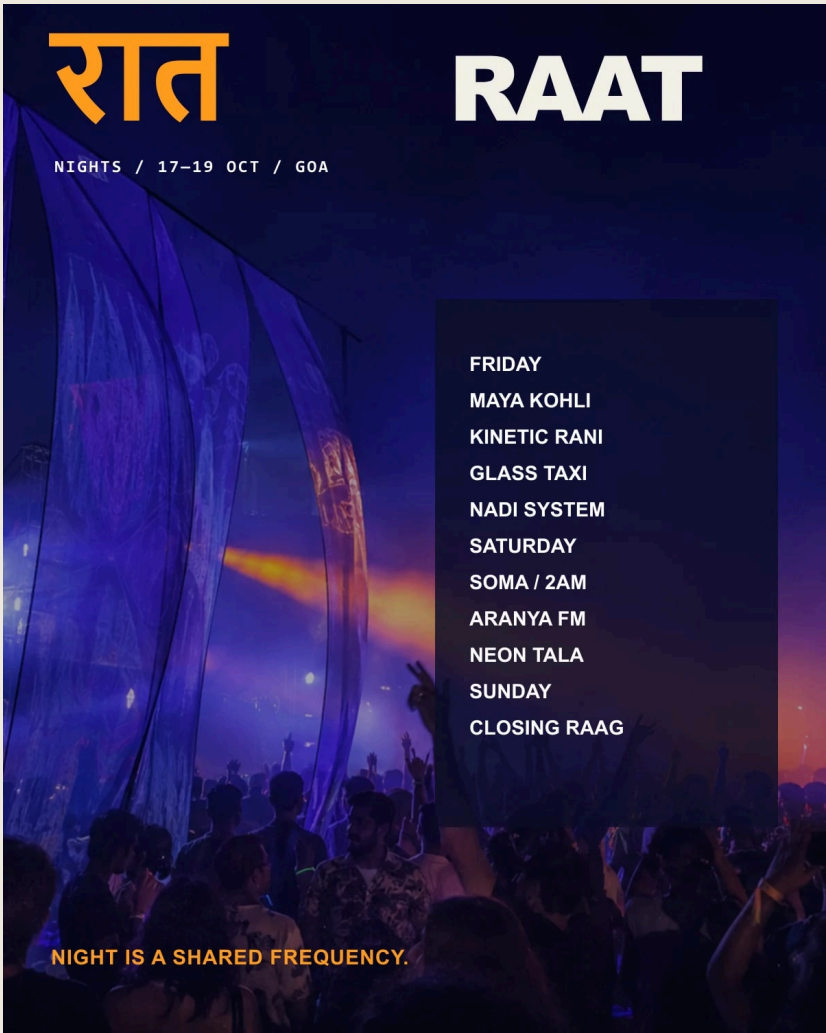

One night. Two languages. A shared frequency.

35% live-event atmosphere + 30% bilingual typography + 20% frequency geometry + 15% operational information.

Crowd imagery was generated with AI. Festival, performers, schedule, bilingual hierarchy, symbols and applications are fictional and were authored for this concept.

Read the complete case study ↗

AK-011 / FESTIVAL POSTER / 4:5

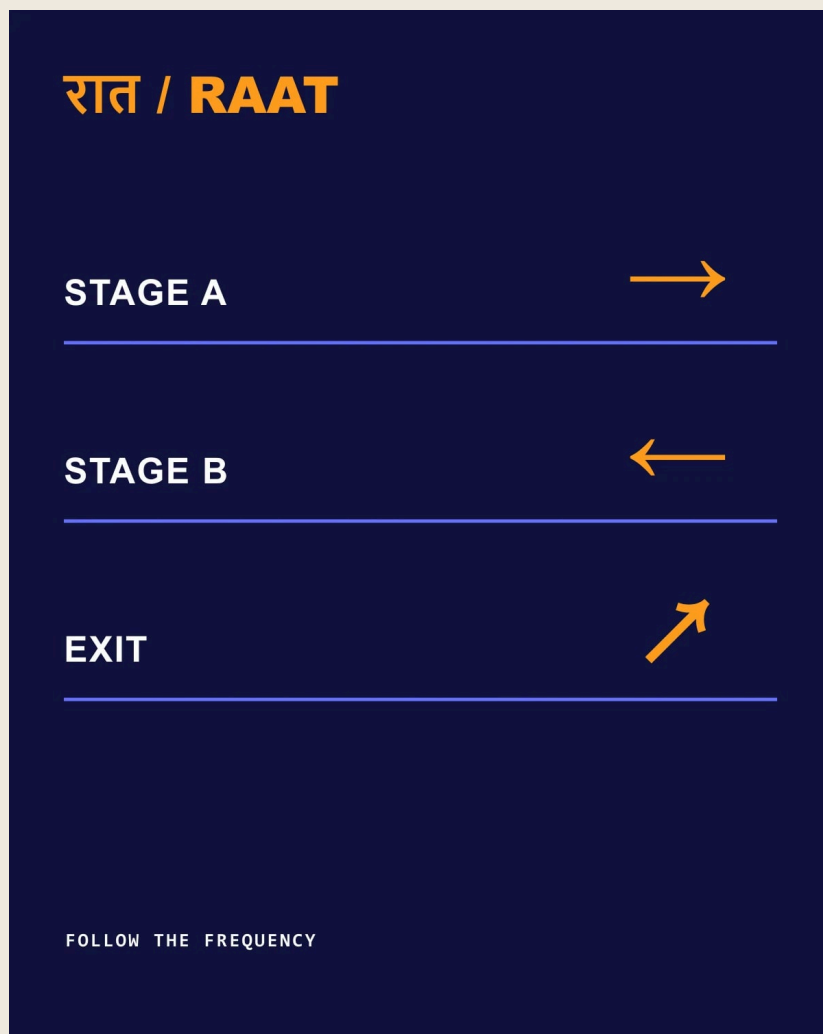

RAAT Nights lineup

A bilingual lineup poster that keeps energy in the image and order in a dark information panel.

AK-012 / TICKET / 18:7

RAAT weekend pass

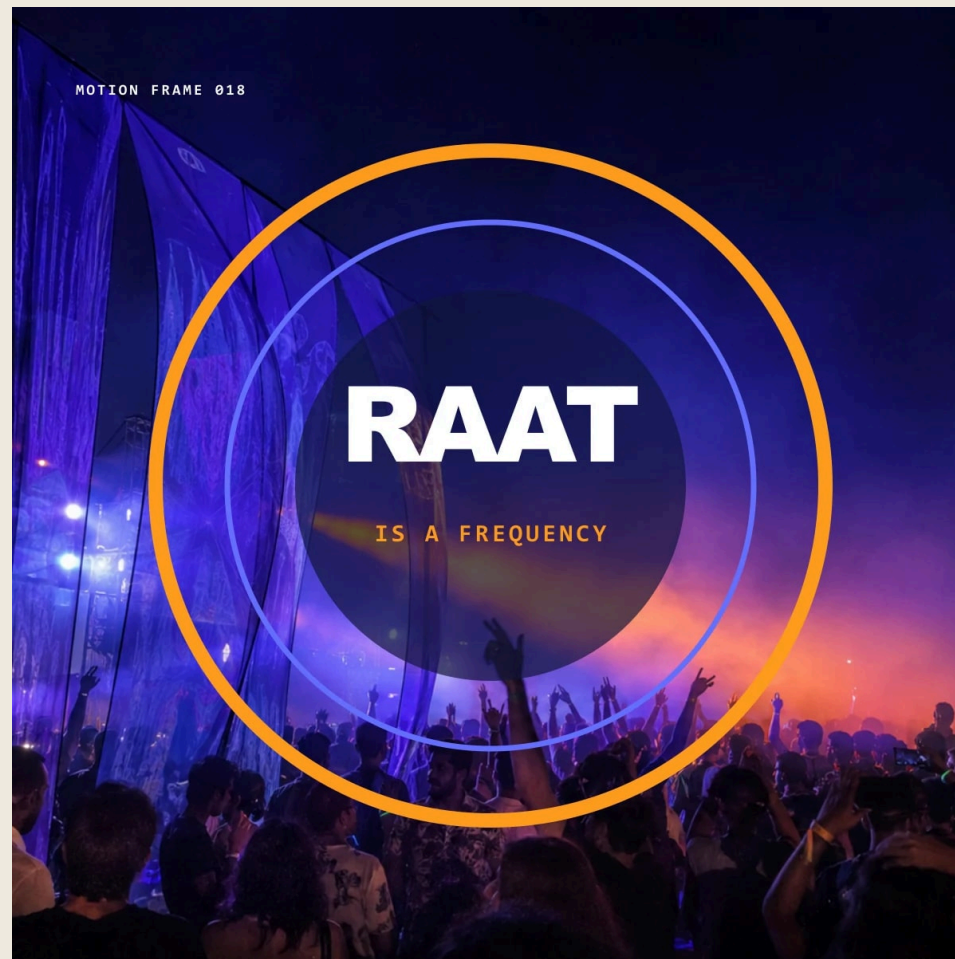

A high-contrast admission object using one perforation line to divide identity from logistics.

AK-013 / ENVIRONMENTAL SIGN / 4:5

RAAT wayfinding

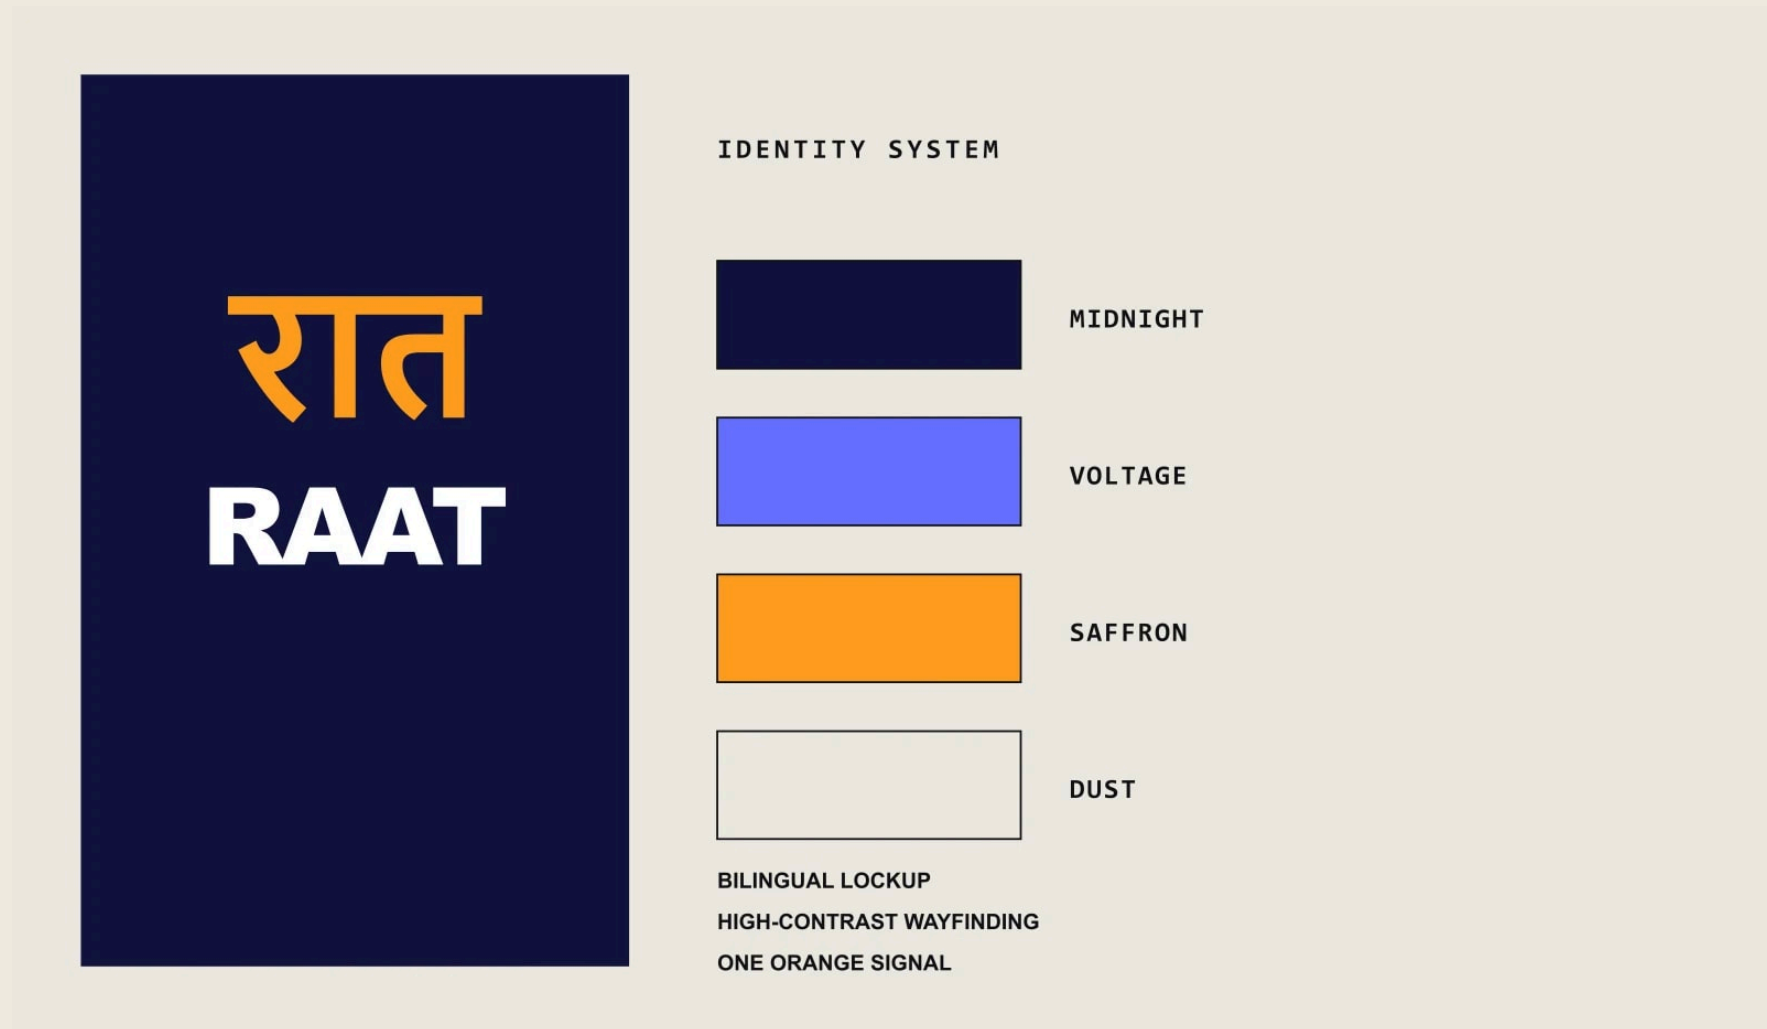

An environmental sign that keeps movement instructions dominant over festival styling.

AK-014 / MOTION KEYFRAME / 1:1

RAAT frequency frame

A motion frame that converts the crowd into a broadcast field without obscuring the event name.

AK-015 / IDENTITY BOARD / 12:7

RAAT identity system

A restrained system board documenting the fixed elements behind the energetic applications.

04

Self-initiated fictional fragrance / 2026

VEIL/03: Wear the Afterimage

Make the words part of the image.

35% body and product photography + 30% physically behaving type +
20% glass distortion + 15% clinical information design.

Portrait and bottle base plates were generated with AI. Lettering was separately authored and composed to behave as projected light and reflected material. No existing Sagmeister composition was copied.

Read the complete case study ↗

AK-016 / BODY TYPOGRAPHY / 4:5

Wear the Afterimage

A physical-typography study in which projected words follow the body while a small product lockup restores hierarchy.

AK-017 / CAMPAIGN TRIPTYCH / 2:1

Afterimage sequence

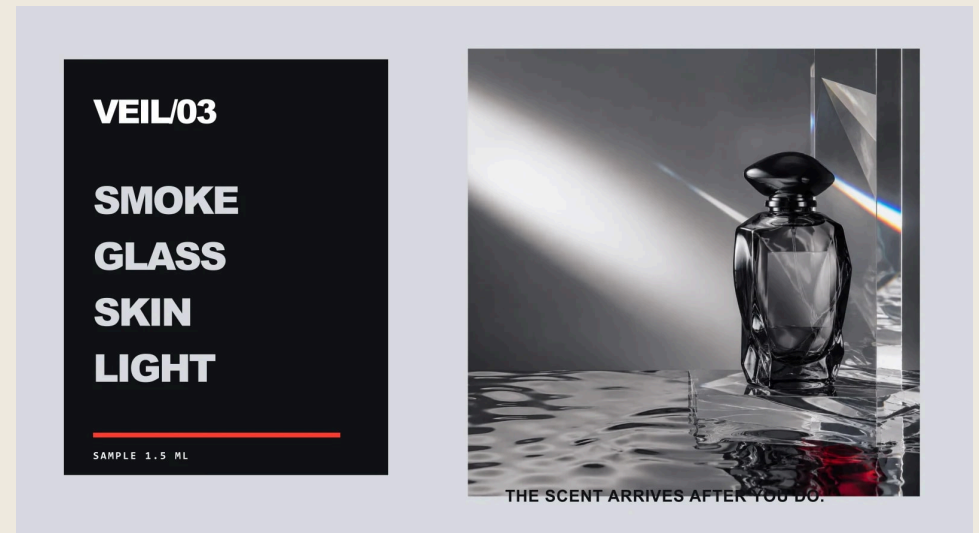

A non-harmful typographic sequence using projection logic, repetition and progressive legibility.

AK-018 / PACKAGING CAMPAIGN / 1:1

VEIL/03 bottle

A product composition that uses the empty side of the photograph for a compact vertical identity.

AK-019 / EDITORIAL AD / 9:5

VEIL/03 sample editorial

An editorial advertisement that translates fragrance into a restrained material vocabulary.

05

Self-initiated fictional publication / 2026

SIGNAL/NOISE

Give a loud culture room to think.

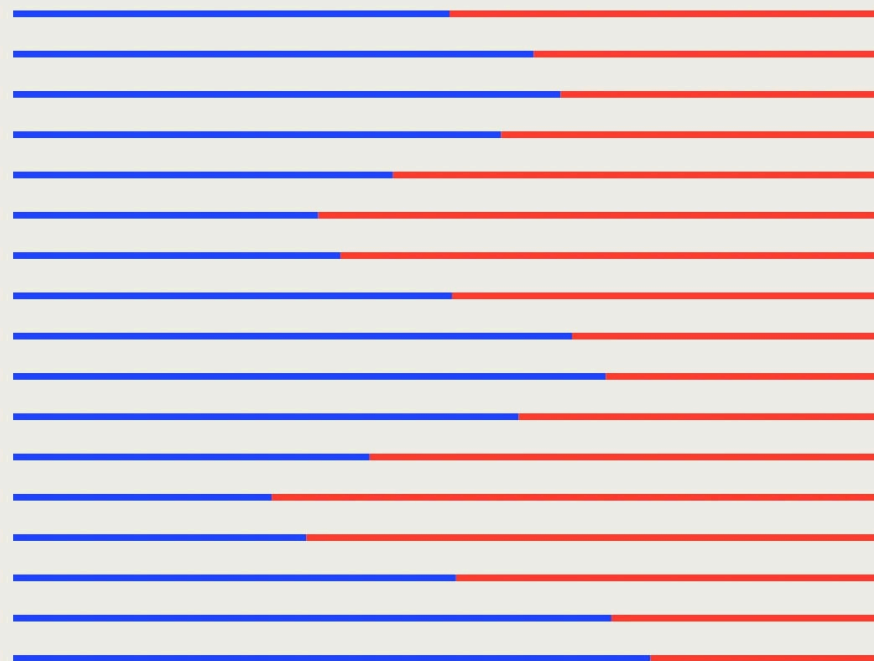

50% editorial typography + 25% signal diagrams + 15% print texture +
10% interface rhythm.
